SHOOTING BEE AT CROFTON WOUNDS ONE.

Walter Bowling and Wm. Jones Exchange Several Shots.

FELL OUT OVER CROPS.

Jones Catches Three Bullets From Bowling's Pistol.

Wm. Jones, a cropper on the farm of Walter Bowling near Crofton, was shot and slightly wounded Tuesday by Bowling. Bad feeling had been engendered in a dispute over the corn crop and in a suit in the magistrate's court at Crofton. Monday the point in dispute was decided in favor of Bowling and an attachment on the corn was dismissed. The next day Bowling went to the crib to get the corn and Jones was on hand and opened fire, shooting twice at him. Bowling returned the shots with a pistol, three shots taking effect in Jones' forehead, hand and shoulder. The wounds were slight and Jones rode to Crofton to have them dressed. Bowling gave himself up and will plead self defense.

STOCKHOLDERS' MEET.

Old Directory of Tobacco Company Re-elected.

The stockholders of the R. T. Martin Greenville Tobacco Manufacturing Company held their annual meeting at the office of the company here Monday afternoon. The old directory was re-elected for the year 1905 and the report of the Secretary and Treasurer was read and approved. The officers of the company will be chosen at a meeting to be held next week. The President reported a healthy condition of affairs and a prosperous year just closed. The company's business extends over a dozen or more states and they are taxed to their full capacity in filling orders.

NUMEROUS RELATIVES

Here, Had John Randle, who Died in Tennessee.

John D. Randle, son of T. N. Randle, of near Hampton Station, Tenn., and a cousin of Messrs. Geo. E. and W. F. Randle, and Mr. Eugene Wood, all of this city, died last Thursday night. He was 30 years old and a member of the Baptist church.

His illness started from a bone felon which had been lanced. Blood poisoning set in, but the physicians succeeded in combating this disease and he had nearly recovered when he had nervous prostration. Paralysis of the brain, which caused his death, followed the latter spell.

LEFT CHILDLESS.

By a Double Affliction in One Day.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hampton, of Trenton, lost two little girls, their only children, Tuesday, of whooping cough and pneumonia. Katherine, aged two and a half years, died at 3:30 and Minnie Lee, aged one year, died at 5 p. m. Both were buried together yesterday at Benbrook. The bereaved parents have the sympathies of many friends in their double affliction.

Caused His Death.

Gilbert Allen, a colored boy ten years old, hurt his hand with a toy pistol Jan. 2 and died one day this week from lockjaw, resulting from the wound.

KENTUCKY THOROUGHBREDS IN KENTUCKY.

Adelbert Stud Written Up By a Bluegrass Paper With Illustrations.

WILLIAMS & RADFORD.

History of the Rise and Development of the Race Horse Industry.

It must be conceded that in the immediate vicinity of Lexington are clustered the most famous lot of stock farms to be found in any one section of the country. From this fact the impression is frequently gotten that the breeding of thoroughbreds is not attempted elsewhere in the State. As a general rule this is true, but to it there is at least one exception which must be made—the Adelbert Stud of Messrs. Williams & Radford at Hopkinsville, says the Kentucky Farmer and Breeder, illustrated write-up from which the salient points are represented.

Christian county has proved and is proving that it can produce thoroughbreds comparable with the best. The industry there is comparatively new. Even now after several years of remarkable success by the men who were pioneers in it, it has enlisted but few results. Gradually, however, it is growing, and the prospects are that the next ten years will witness a number of breeding establishments of greater or less magnitude which will do their part towards making Southern Kentucky as well as Central Kentucky a factor to be reckoned with in the thoroughbred world.

Pioneer in the Industry.

In 1890 Dr. W. W. Williams, who had been a successful practicing dentist in Hopkinsville for a number of years, began the acquisition of a few select thoroughbred mares. These he bred to the stallions of various establishments in Tennessee and conducted a small business successfully until 1895. That year he formed a partnership with Maj. C. S. Radford of the United States Navy, and the two bought the stallion imp. Albert. The spring of 1895 Albert served about a half-dozen mares, among them the afterwards-famous Hoodoo, who, to the cover of Albert, produced the following spring the good stake mare Jinks.

At the fall sales of 1895 Messrs. Williams & Radford, who in the meantime had acquired a farm of some hundred and sixty acres on the edge of Hopkinsville, were liberal purchasers of mares. Among others they bought Hypocrite from the Castleton Stud of Mr. James R. Keene. She was in foal to Kingston. Their first public sale of yearlings was held at Cincinnati, the spring of 1897. At that sale the filly by Kingston out of Hypocrite was offered and that filly proved to be the sensational Admiration. She was bought by Mr. T. C. McDowell for $800, with the understanding that Messrs. Williams & Radford would buy her back at the purchase price whenever Mr. McDowell chose to return her, in order to use her for breeding purposes. The spring of her two-year-old year Admiration showed remarkable speed, but she developed a bad case of rheumatism and was, therefore, unable to start.

At the inaugural sale of Messrs. Williams & Radford the first filly by Albert out of Hoodoo was also offered. She was bought by Mr. J. W. (Bud) May, who named her Jinks. Later, as a two-year-old, she was sold to H. M. Zeigler. In his colors she won many races and that fall she was sold to Mr. Whitney and proved a good stake winner as a

MRS. HARRIET JOHNSON

Passes Away at Her Home Near Kelly.

Mrs. Harriet Johnson, widow of James Johnson, died at her home near Kelly Wednesday. She was about 75 years old and had been an invalid for several years. Deceased was the daughter of the late Rev. Jobb Clark, a sister of Hon. H. B. Clark, of Gracery, and mother of Messrs. W. W. and Joseph Johnson, of this city. She was also an aunt of Messrs. Claud R. George and Cliff Clark, of this place. She was a woman held in the highest esteem by all who knew her, and she had been a member of the Universalist church for many years. Funeral services were held at her late residence yesterday morning at 10 o'clock by Rev. H. C. Becket, and the interment took place in the Clark burying ground near Crofton.

TROUBLES OF WEDDED LIFE

Recently Married Man Tells of Home-Coming Experiences with Better Half.

There is no story in this, and there is nothing funny in it. It is merely the earnest searching of a mere man for the truth, says the Mexican Herald. It occurred at an informal confession held one afternoon last week after business hours. The seeker had not been married long and was trying to learn the system of the others who sat about the flat-topped, bottle-becked shrine. They had been married considerably longer.

"Now, I want to know," said he, "what the limit is. I mean the limit of talk I must make to make home happy. My wife likes to have me tell her the things that happen at the office during the day. She wants me to tell her about the people I've met during the day. In other words, she wants me to be sociable when I come home. Well, now, that's all right. I can understand that. She gets lonesome, and it's a fact I've got a habit of not talking much. Am inclined to be rather quiet, and sometimes she takes that for grumpiness. That's natural, too. Can't blame her for that. Then some days I go to the office and make up my mind that I'll load up my mind with the interesting things I'm going to talk about when I go home. I succeed and reach home with enough stuff in my head to fill a newspaper and begin to unload. Then my wife takes a long look at me and gets busy with something or other in another part of the house. I go look her up and continue my line of talk. Of course, she can't say I'm grouchy, but she does what's worse. With what she intends to be her most withering tone, she suggests that I 'must have had a drink this afternoon.' Then I admit I took one just after I left the office. She begins to look amused and says she is quite sure I never stopped at one, or I wouldn't be so talkative. Now, what am I to do?"

The older men merely shook their heads, sighed, and then in a chorus told him it was a disease they would both outgrow.

LEARNED NOT TO MEDDLE.

Workshop Teacher in a New York School Explains His Cure for Troublesome Habit.

"The boy was a slave to the fear of doing things the wrong way," said a workshop teacher in one of the city schools. "He showed that in so many ways that I clasped him among the people who in their childhood want mamma to take them to school, the people who hesitate to think for themselves because they know the thinking will be done for them," relates the New York Sun.

"His dependence upon specific directions was a serious handicap to him in the workshop, and his helplessness when any work prevented me from answering his questions prompted me to plan a cure for this defect in his character. I tried to shame him into self help, but he preferred my jibes to becoming his own master. One day, after he had put my patience to a particularly severe test, I called him to my office and asked him why he was so loath to develop his own judgment."

"Well," said he, "it is this way. When I was much younger than now no one could tell me anything. I was eternally finding out for myself."

"My father owned a stone quarry, and I had often followed him to see the men drill and blast the blocks of stone. The whole thing was a deep mystery to me."

"One day at noon, while the men were eating lunch, I took it upon myself to solve the mystery. Unseen, I went to one of the holes, pulled out what the men had put in and began to test it with my little hammer."

"When I woke a few days later I found myself in my bed, much bandaged and in charge of a nurse. I now prefer too much caution, in experimental work, to extreme curiosity."

Too Bad.

"Hello, Raggy!" said the first newsboy, sarcastically, "I didn't see you at de Astorblit weddin' last night."

"No," replied the other. "I wuz all ready to go, but me bloomin' valet didn't show up in time ter mannyveer me Angerants."

Couple Last Week.
Julien, Ky., Jan. 40.—Mr. and Mrs. Thos. C. VanCleave, (nee Miss Elsie Baker), have gone to Calif., where they will make their future home. Mention has been made of their wedding Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.
Miss Annie Stowe, cousin of the bride, sang "Beauty's Eyes," a very appropriate song. Miss Birdie Stowe played the wedding march, the old, familiar strain of Mendelssohn's.
The ribbon girls were little Misses Julia Henry and Irma Stowe, who came in first and made the aisles of white ribbon. The other ribbon girls were Ethel and Kathleen Stone, all cousins of the bride. (The bridal party was fenced in by the ribbon girls.)
Miss Ermine VanCleave entered first, then Miss Polly Graves, of Murray, followed by Misses Carrie Baker and Irma Goodwin, of Cerulean.
Mr. Bernice Penick, of Allensville, was best man.
Miss Alberta Baker was maid of honor, sister of the bride.
The bride was dressed in crepe-de-chine and veil. She carried a large, beautiful bouquet of bride roses, the bridesmaids carrying pink roses.
The wedding was followed by a reception at Mr. J. J. VanCleave's, and the bridal party was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Stowe Wednesday evening, and Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Henry, at dinner, Thursday.
Following is a list of many of the presents:
Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Dunn, Cadiz, set silver tea spoons.
Dr. Bradshaw, Cadiz, chocolate pitcher.
Mrs. Cordie White, Cadiz, set of cut glass tumblers.
Dr. and Mrs. G. E. Medley, Gracey, cut glass water bottle.

The Diamond Cure.

The latest news from Paris is that they have discovered a diamond cure for consumption. If you fear consumption and pneumonia, it will, however, be best for you to take that great remedy mentioned by W. T. McGee, of Vanleer, Tenn. "I had a cough, for fourteen years. Nothing helped me until I took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which gave me instant relief, and effected a permanent cure." Unequalled quick cure for throat and lung troubles. At R. C. Hardwick's drug store, price 50c and $1.00, guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

Married Near Crofton.

D. G. Gladdish and Miss Eva Bowling, of near Crofton, were married Tuesday night. Rev. P. P. Gladdish, brother of the groom, performed the ceremony.

Bent Her Double.

"I knew no one, for four weeks, when I was sick, with typhoid and kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Annie Hunter, of Pittsburg, Pa., "and when I got better, although I had one of the best doctors I could get, I was bent double, and had to rest my hands on my knees when I walked. From this terrible affliction I was rescued by Electric Bitters, which restored my health and strength, and now I can walk as straight as ever. They are simply wonderful." Guaranteed to cure stomach, liver and kidney disorders; at R. C. Hardwick's drug store, price 50c.

Writer Claims That M. Victor Berard Has Disappeared Mired Connected with Poems.

For centuries rival scholars have quarreled over the birthplace of Homer, and have disputed whether he was a man or a syndicate, but it has been almost universally accepted that his Odyssey geography is the airy figment of a delicate imagination, amid which, as in some unsubstantial dreamland, an unreal Odysseus wandered aimlessly in mythical confusion. In the fortnightly Review Mr. T. A. Cook claims for M. Victor Berard that in his book "Les Phoeniciens et l'Odyssée," the author has solved the problems of the Homeric poem. M. Berard has spent years in working up and down the coasts of the Mediterranean in a sailing boat, armed with the French "Nautical Instructions," which are ultimately based on the "Periploi" of the Phoenician sailors.

M. Berard has located the land of the Lotus eaters, the island of Calypso, the cave of the Cyclops, and the rest of the familiar spots, and shows that Homer used one of the ancient Phoenician log-books on which to base his descriptions. The date at which Homer wrote must be before the foundation of Syracuse, in 735, for by then the Phoenician sea supremacy had already given way to the young Hellenic colonies. It was in the full flower of the society created by Phoenician commerce that Homer wrote. This would give us from 900 to 850 B. C. as his date, and this is the date which Herodotus suggests for him. Cretan discoveries have shown that ordinary fluent script was known and practiced far earlier than Wolf and his disciples imagine; and it was upon a basis of sailors' logs, so written, that Homer wrote his book.

HOW JACKSON GOT WEALTH

Former President Took Land, as Law Fees, Which Afterward Made Him Rich.

There are two ways of reaching "The Hermitage" from Nashville—either by carriage the entire distance, or by train to the little station called "Hermitage," thence by conveyance or foot the remaining three miles. In either case the way leads among the rugged hills of "sunny Tennessee," through native forests which we may easily imagine look just as they did in the latter part of the eighteenth century, when Andrew Jackson, a young man who had just completed a brief and very unsystematic course of "reading law," placed all his worldly goods and himself on the back of his one horse and turned his face from the Carolinas to the then wilderness of eastern Tennessee to make his fortune, says Cora B. Harris, in Four-Track News. The land records of 1794-97 show that it was during those years that Jackson laid the foundation for the large estate that he afterward owned. He was the only lawyer in that region in the early days—days when money was scarce and land was cheap, and a lawyer's fee for conducting a case of no very great importance could easily be a "640," a square mile of land. In a few years he was the owner of 50,000 acres, which he acquired while cheap and held till it advanced in value, when he sold part of it to enable him to cultivate and improve the remainder.

Historic Parchment.

A document which is valued very highly by the Creeks is the copy of the old treaty between the United States government and the Creek Indians, February 12, 1833, assigning them to their present home in the Indian territory. It is printed on a parchment and bears the signature of Millard Fillmore, president of the United States when the treaty was finally ratified, August 1, 1854. The long stretch between the two dates on the document is the period of more than 20 years which elapsed before the government could induce the Creeks to leave their home in Alabama and move to the new country.

No Doctor Required.

"It isn't necessary for a doctor to place a thermometer in a man's mouth," remarked the Observer of Events and Things, "to discover that he has cold feet."—Yonkers Statesman.
